Highway Construction

For

Women and Minorities

Training is available to women and minorities in Highway Construction. It costs nothing but your time and a willingness to work in highway construction. Participants may have the opportunity to obtain National Center for Construction Education and Research (NCCER) certification in core construction which includes basic skills in blueprint reading, safety, hand/power tools, introduction to the computer and state/national certification in flagging. Some participants may also have tuition assistance to obtain a class A-Commercial Driver License. There are a limited number of CDL slots available.
